This study on the topic “Agricultural Administration in Punjab: Role of Select Agencies i.e. Department of Agriculture, Punjab and Punjab Agricultural University, Ludhiana” has been spread over six chapters and each chapter investigating the specific aspect of the problem. The first chapter has dealt at length with introduction and research methodology used in this research work. The samples of 303 farmers, 57 PAU officials and 53 DOA officials were drawn to elicit the responses to find out the satisfaction level of farmers with regards of select agencies and the satisfaction level of officials with the role of farmers and the farming practices. The Chapter II has dealt with Administrative Set up and Functions of the Department of Agriculture and Punjab Agriculture University. Chapter III highlights Farmers Perception about the Role of Select Agencies: An Assessment of the Satisfaction Level of the Farmers. Chapter IV Farmers Perception about Agricultural Administration: An Assessment of Agricultural Initiatives and the Programmes of the State. Chapter V examines Officials Perception about the Role of Farmers and Farming Practices: An Assessment of Satisfaction Level of Officials. Chapter VI has dealt with the Conclusion and Suggestions.

The findings have reflected that the farmers were satisfied with the initiatives and programmes of State whereas they were not satisfied with the role of select agencies. On the other side, the officials were not satisfied with the role of farmers and farming practices.
